Canada To Be Published October 2020

Base Year: 2019

Forecasts to 2024

Regional Coverage: Asia ■ Europe ■ Latin America ■ North America

The increasing importance and impact of independent hair stylists has been a major factor in the development of many professional hair care markets. Whether mobile and at-home hairdressers in Russia or booth renters in the United States, these independent stylists, growing in number and importance have drawn the attention of many salon hair care manufacturers, as their purchase patterns, brands they work with, and services they provide seem to differ from some of those that can be attributed to traditional hair salons. These independent stylists have become an important target group for several brands and can become game changers in the salon hair care industry. Based on a survey to be conducted with hundreds of independent stylists across five countries, along with Kline's principal approach of unstructured interviews with market participants, this new study will take the first-ever look into this important market niche.

This Report Addresses Questions Such as:

- How many independent stylists are there in each country?
- Which services do they offer?
- Which products are the most popular?
- What is the size and growth of this segment be in terms of service revenue?
- Where do independent stylists purchase the products that they work with?
- Which brands make an impact?
